ABSTRACT

This publication is a guide to the holdings and locations of over 100 periodical and newspaper titles relating to Asian Americans which were received before August 1979 at the library of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin and at the libraries of the University of Wisconsin at Madison. It includes older titles which have ceased publication as well as titles still being published. The scope of the guide is broad, including literary, political, and historical journals as well as general newspapers and feature magazines of the Asian American community. An introductory section provides a history of the collections and a detailed explanation of the organization of the guide and the entry format used. In addition to the alphabetical listing of titles, the guide includes lists of sources for the purchase of microfilm copies of the titles listed and the individual libraries whose holdings are included. Geographic, name, subject, and chronological indexes to the listings are also provided. (JL)

INTRODUCTION

The first significant Asian immigration to the United States was the importation of Chinese laborers to California during the 1860's for the building of the transcontinental railroad. The workers (called coolies) signed promissory notes to be held against their wages, similar to the indentured servants of early colonial days. Today the Asian American community includes groups from Japan, the Philippines, Thailand, Cambodia, Vietnam, Korea, India, and elsewhere. The Vietnamese, Cambodians, Laotians, and others who are the most recent immigrants to the United States have created their own group of publications, which reflect many of the early concerns of groups that are more established, such as the Japanese and the Chinese. The titles represented in this bibliography include those produced by recent immigrants which focus on such survival issues as employment, housing, and shelter to earlier arrivals with a background of integration and economic success. Two significant areas of publication are quite different, though: the Japanese internment camp papers and the papers produced by Asian American radical political groups. Both are significant parts of the collection and are indicative of these aspects of the Asian American experience.

In Wisconsin the number of Asian Americans has never been great, though it has increased rapidly since World War II, as shown in the following statistics from the 1977 Wisconsin Blue Book:

Not unexpectedly, the number of Asian American titles from Wisconsin has never been large, and most of the publications have issued from the University community.

The interest of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin in Asian Americans has been important, considering the modest local population. Two titles in the Logmark Editions series published by the Society for the Department of History at the University of Wisconsin have dealt with Asian American topics. The first was Ping Chiu's Chinese Labor in California, 1850-1880: An Economic Study (1963) and the second title was Douglas W. Nelson's Heart Mountain: The History of an American Concentration Camp (1976). The Wisconsin Magazine of History, the Society's quarterly, has published several articles about Asian American relations that provide needed background to an understanding of the position of Asian Americans in the United States. They include: "The Death of John Birch--Documented," by James P. Walsh; "Down From the Ivory Tower: Paul Samuel Reinsch, Minister to China," by Alan E. Kent; "To the Edsin Gol: A Wisconsinite's Journey in Inner Mongolia, 1935," by Malcolm Rosholt; and "Three Years in Paradise: A GI's Prisoner-of-War Diary, 1942-1945," by Ernest O. Norquist.

The Library of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin serves as the American history library for the University of Wisconsin in addition to the service it provides to citizens of Wisconsin and researchers from elsewhere. The Library is the focal point for Asian American studies on campus and has a large number of books, pamphlets, and broadsides to complement the periodicals and newspapers described in this booklet. The collection dates from the last half of the nineteenth century, though its strength is greater for the post-World War II period.

This publication is a guide to the holdings and locations of over 100 periodical and newspaper titles relating to Asian Americans which were received before August, 1979, in the Library of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin and libraries of the University of Wisconsin-Madison. It includes older titles which have long since ceased publication as well as those still being published. The scope of the guide is broad, including literary, political, and historical journals as well as general newspapers and feature magazines of the Asian American community. This guide, the first of its kind published for the campus, represents many phases of Asian American thought and action, from the last half of the nineteenth century to titles growing out of the increase in Asian American consciousness and ethnic pride beginning in the 1960's. The guide was prepared in order to assist faculty and students who found it difficult to use the rich, but dispersed, resources. We hope that this guide will facilitate the use of our collections by scholars locally as well as nationally. It is, we believe, a guide to the strongest Asian American collection in Wisconsin and a true regional resource.

The arrangement of the union list is alphabetical. An explanation of the standard entry format follows:

An indication is also noted in appropriate titles for the language (if other than English) and where a title is indexed. After the main alphabetical listing (which contains all title variants) are a number of indexes. The indexes are a geographic index (alphabetically by state and then by city), name index (all editors and publishing organizations), a subject index, and a chronological index (keyed to campus holdings only).

The indexes cited in the body of this bibliography include: Education Index (Bronx, New York: The H.W. Wilson Company), IRCD Bulletin (New York, New York: Information Retrieval Center on the Disadvantaged, Institute for Urban and Minority Education, Teachers College, Columbia University), and ERIC (Washington, District of Columbia: Educational Resources Information Center, National Institute of Education, Department of Health, Education and Welfare).

Librarians who provided information about their holdings for this edition were: Bill Bunce (Kohler Art Library), Dorothy Kanter (Center for Health Sciences Library), Bill Ebbott (Law School), Thurston Davini (School of Social Work), Chester Wang, Jack Wells, and Erwin Welsch (Memorial Library), Gretchen Lagana (Rare Books, Memorial Library), Ann Vandenburgh (Microforms, Memorial Library), Jean Rideout (Library School), Sue Center (Criminal Justice Center), Barbara Strauss (Music Library), and Janice Beaudin (College Library).

Gloria L. Kumagai, Project Director of the Integrating Asian American Curriculum into the Classroom Project of the Saint Paul Public Schools, provided us with a number of titles that we might otherwise have missed. Sanford Berman, Head Cataloger of the Hennepin County Library in Edina, Minnesota, graciously reviewed the subject index and generated the Alternative Cataloging in Publication data.

As we plan to update this list periodically, we would appreciate comments or suggestions for additional information or titles. Please submit them to James P. Danky, Newspapers and Periodicals Librarian, State Historical Society of Wisconsin, 816 State Street, Madison, Wisconsin 53706, phone (608) 262-9584.
